

“Betty & Taylors of Harrogate’s Response”, 3 December 2021

We welcome this report and recognise the role that transparency can play in helping create more resilient and sustainable supply chains. We’ve long been committed to sharing information about where we source our tea – having first published our supplier lists in 2018.

As a family business we’re committed to improving the social and environmental standards on the estates we buy from. Working with suppliers, influencing trade associations, the on-going development of monitoring and certification standards, and expanding existing and establishing new programmes on the ground – often in partnerships – are all part of our work.

We believe that sharing information and being open about where and who we buy from enables collaboration and underpins the action needed to drive change within the industry. You can find more information about our work here.
